On May 1, 2019, His Majesty the Emperor acceded to the Throne, and the era name changed from Heisei to Reiwa. This marked the first imperial succession by abdication in approximately 200 years.

The most important ceremony of the Accession to the Throne is the Ceremony of the Enthronement of His Majesty the Emperor at the Seiden (State Hall), in which His Majesty the Emperor proclaims his enthronement and receives felicitations from representatives in Japan and overseas.

Japanese and foreign guests were invited to the Ceremony of the Enthronement at the Seiden held on October 22, 2019. While heads of State, envoys, their spouses, and others from 160 countries and organizations attended the Heisei imperial succession, the Reiwa imperial succession was represented by 191 countries, organizations, and others. Foreign guests also attended the Court Banquet after the Ceremony of the Enthronement and the Banquet hosted by the Prime Minister and his spouse.

With many foreign dignitaries visiting Japan, the events offered an opportunity to acquaint a wider circle of people across the globe with the linkages between the Imperial Family and the world.

I have hereby succeeded to the Throne pursuant to the Constitution of Japan and the Special Measures Law on the Imperial House Law.

When I think about the important responsibility I have assumed, I am filled with a sense of solemnity.

Looking back, His Majesty the Emperor Emeritus, since acceding to the Throne, performed each of his duties in earnest for more than 30 years, while praying for world peace and the happiness of the people, and at all times sharing in the joys and sorrows of the people. He showed profound compassion through his own bearing. I would like to express my heartfelt respect and appreciation of the comportment shown by His Majesty the Emperor Emeritus as the symbol of the State and of the unity of the people of Japan.

In acceding to the Throne, I swear that I will reflect deeply on the course followed by His Majesty the Emperor Emeritus and bear in mind the path trodden by past emperors, and will devote myself to self-improvement. I also swear that I will act according to the Constitution and fulfill my responsibility as the symbol of the State and of the unity of the people of Japan, while always turning my thoughts to the people and standing with them. I sincerely pray for the happiness of the people and the further development of the nation as well as the peace of the world.

■ Fostering friendly relations with foreign countries

The Imperial Family facilitates the fostering of good relations on an international level through visits to other countries by the Emperor or other members of the Imperial Family, or by receiving a foreign country's monarch, Royal Family or President as distinguished guests. They also receive other foreign dignitaries or leading figures from abroad, exchange correspondence and telegrams with foreign Heads of State, or dispatch a representative to foreign countries on the occasion of celebration or sorrow (on appropriate occasions), and receive diplomatic missions residing in Japan.

◆ Receiving State Guests

State Guests (Kokuhin) are foreign Heads of State or equivalent who are officially invited and received by the Japanese Government with the utmost courtesy. The foreign Heads of State who will be invited and received by the Imperial Family are determined by a Cabinet Meeting. The reception of State Visits by the Imperial Family includes a welcoming ceremony attended by Their Majesties the Emperor and Empress, audiences with Their Majesties, State Banquet at the Imperial Palace and farewell calls by Their Majesties. Their Majesties, together with the rest of the Imperial Family, wholeheartedly receive these State Guests.

◆ Receiving Official Guests

Guests on Official Visits (Kouhin) are those whom the government invites and receives with the utmost courtesy, and are formally received by the Japanese Government. Such guests are typically members of a Royal Family from other countries, Heads of Administrative Organs or equally High-Ranking Officials. The decision to invite and receive them is made with the approval of a Cabinet Meeting. The details of the reception by the Imperial Family are determined in accordance with the individual guests.

Guests on Official Visits (Koushiki-jitsumu-houmon-hinkyaku) are typically foreign Heads of State, members of a Royal Family, Head of Administrative Organs or equivalent, who are visiting Japan mainly for practical and/or business matters. When such people make known their wishes to visit Japan, the Japanese Government considers the purpose of the visit and, with the approval of a Cabinet Meeting, may decide to officially invite and receive them as distinguished guests. These guests are also received by the Imperial Family, and the details of the reception are determined in accordance with the individual guests.

◆ Ceremony of the Presentation of Credentials

A newly appointed foreign ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary presents his/her credentials to His Majesty the Emperor. The Minister for Foreign Affairs or another Minister of State must be present.

A horse-drawn carriage or automobile owned by the Imperial Household may be provided to the Ambassador and his/her party for transportation to and from the Imperial Palace according to the Ambassador's wishes.

Column: About the horse-drawn carriages

During the Ceremony of the Presentation of Credentials, ceremonial horse-drawn carriages welcome newly appointed ambassadors to Japan and convey them from the Tokyo Station to the Imperial Palace South Porch.

Only a few countries worldwide, among them the United Kingdom and Spain, use horse-drawn carriages to welcome newly appointed ambassadors. In Japan, many ambassadors express a preference for the carriages over a conventional motorcade, attesting to the success of the ceremony in promoting international goodwill.

The ceremonial carriages used to welcome ambassadors are drawn by two horses and known as zagyoshiki. Most were manufactured from the end of the Meiji period(1868-1912) to the beginning of the Showa period(1926-1989) and have artistic value.

Processions of horse-drawn carriages are also used in Imperial Household ceremonies such as the accession of the Emperor to the throne and weddings of members of the Imperial Family.

◆ Audiences

An audience is a meeting of Their Majesties the Emperor and Empress with foreign Heads of State, Prime Ministers, Ambassadors and their spouses, and other distinguished guests. On such occasions Their Majesties have friendly conversations with these guests.

Their Imperial Highnesses the Crown Prince and Crown Princess and the rest of the Imperial Family also hold friendly meetings with foreign guests.

◆ Correspondence

Official letters that His Majesty the Emperor sends to foreign Heads of State, or those He writes in reply to the letters from foreign Heads of State, are referred to as Imperial Letters. Letters or replies to letters written by Their Majesties the Emperor and Empress or either of Their Majesties to persons other than foreign Heads of State may also be referred to as Imperial Letters.

Imperial Telegrams are those sent by His Majesty the Emperor or Their Majesties on such important occasions as a foreign State's National Day or Independence Day, the birthday of a King or Queen, on the occasion of the demise of a Head of State, or a major disaster. Replies to telegrams received on the occasion of either of Their Majesties' birthdays are also referred to as Imperial Telegrams.

By corresponding through these letters and telegrams, Their Majesties the Emperor and Empress contribute to fostering friendly relations with foreign countries.

◆ Receiving Diplomatic Missions Residing in Japan

Newly appointed foreign Ambassadors Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary present His Majesty the Emperor with their credentials upon their arrival in Matsu-no-Ma (State Room) of the Imperial Palace. For this important ceremony, the Ambassador is offered, according to his/her preference, the service of either a ceremonial horse-drawn carriage or automobile for transportation. Transportation is provided along the route between the Tokyo Station and the Imperial Palace.

Diplomats posted in Japan may be invited to duck-netting and cormorant-fishing, which are Japanese traditions and heritage that have been preserved by the Imperial Family. Invitations may also be extended to visit the Imperial Stock Farm in Tochigi Prefecture.

5. Imperial Palace

The former Edo castle, the seat of the Shogunate, was turned into the Imperial Palace in 1868. It was officially named "Kyūjō (the palace castle)" from 1888 to 1948. Since then it has been called simply "Kōkyō (the Imperial Palace)".

The Imperial Palace contains the Fukiage Ōmiya Palace, the former residence of Emperor Showa and Empress Kōjūn ; the Imperial Palace, where various functions are conducted; the Imperial Household Agency buildings; Momiji-yama Imperial Cocoonery; Tōkagakudo (Imperial Concert Hall); and the East Gardens of the Imperial Palace.

Completed in October 1968 and coming into use in April of the following year, the Imperial Palace, a structure comprising a large roof, pillars and beams, was built using the beauty of traditional Japanese architecture and materials procured mostly from within Japan.

The Palace is a steel-reinforced concrete building of two stories with an underground floor and an inclined roof with long protruding eaves. It comprises the Seiden (the Main Building), and six wings (Homei-Den, Rensui, Chōwa-Den, Chigusa-no-Ma and Chidori-no-Ma and others) and has a total floor space of 24,175 square metres.
