

FOCUS◎

Is there a way out of the Israel-Gaza crisis?

86 Round table: Can we solve the 'equation between war and peace'?

Why is Israel ignoring the international community and expanding its front? This report examines the complicated intentions of Netanyahu and other actors and considers the 'conditions' for a ceasefire and peace.

Satoshi Ikeuchi (The University of Tokyo), Toru Onozawa (Kyoto University), and Hiroyuki Suzuki (The University of Tokyo)

98 What is Israel's 'far right'?

Based on the historical development of revisionist Zionism, which is the root of the 'far right', this paper examines three key political figures and their influence on the current Israel-Gaza Crisis.

Mariko Mori (Atomi University)

104 Hamas-Hezbollah: 'axis of resistance'

Iran's international isolation after the Iranian revolution has made the cultivation of foreign armed forces a means of national security. This article looks at the origins and functions of Hamas in Gaza and Hezbollah in Lebanon, and their future moves.

Masaki Mizobuchi (Hiroshima University)

---

110 Argentina's new administration marks a turning point

Hirokazu Kikuchi (Institute of Developing Economies, JETRO)

112 Defense policy from a fiscal perspective

The 'Three Strategic Documents' for 2022 call for defense spending to expand by 2% of GDP. Although there are some criticisms from the standpoint of financial resources, this report examines the challenges.

Hirohito Ogi (Asia Pacific Initiative)

118 Climate change is a geopolitical risk

At COP28, it was commonly recognized that climate change will cause not only natural disasters but also economic and social instability and conflict. Can each country confront climate change without compromising its interests?

Takashi Sekiyama (Kyoto University)

124 Diplomacy during the Covid-19 and Global Health Diplomacy strategies in a 'post-Covid-19' world

The world must not forget the lessons from the Covid-19 pandemic. This article reviews Japan's Global Health Diplomacy in the aftermath of Covid-19 and strategies for the next phase of diplomacy.

Takeshi Akahori (Ministry of Foreign Affairs) and Satoshi Ezoe (Ministry of Foreign Affairs)

130 Obituary: Henry Kissinger, former US Secretary of State

The last American who embodies the 'Greatest Generation'

Koji Murata (Doshisha University)

134 Special interview: Japanese diplomacy in the post-Cold War era

Expanding the horizons of Japanese diplomacy

Shotaro Yachi (Former Vice- Minister for Foreign Affairs/ Former Secretary General of National Security Secretariat)

Wataru Yamaguchi (Teikyo University)

Special Feature :

Year 2024 Elections put the world at risk

- 6 Special Dialogue: Toward the construction of 'peace'
Yoko Kamikawa (Foreign Minister) and Hiroshi Nakanishi (Kyoto University)
- 17 Trump's shadow and the international order
US presidential elections are the biggest issue in 2024. We need to consider the international political impact of Trump's unpredictable administration and what response to it would look like.
Fumiaki Kubo (National Defense Academy)
- 24 Round table: Democracy turns its back on the international order
Western countries have long suffered from divisions and confrontations. What direction should we take in the continuing support for Ukraine, the information war, the expansion of democracy, and issues with China?
Maiko Ichihara (Hitotsubashi University), Kazuko Kojima (Keio University), Sanae Suzuki (The University of Tokyo), Atsuko Higashino (Tsukuba University) and Keiko Izuka (Yomiuri Shimbun)
- 36 Elections face serious challenges
The forces that wage information warfare in elections seek to provoke 'historical cleavage' in the other country, influence public thinking, and divide society, requiring a 24-hour response.
Jun Osawa (Nakasone Peace Institute)
- 42 Democracy eroded by elections
Is the 'euphoria of democracy' coming to an end? Elections undermine democracy and serve as a weapon for authoritarian leaders. This report provides a comprehensive overview of elections around the world.
Masaaki Higashijima (The University of Tokyo)
- 48 China's 'propaganda' in Taiwan presidential election
How much influence has China exerted? An overview of the history of the 'influence' of China on Taiwan and Taiwan's countermeasures the 'Anti-Infiltration Act'. How Taiwan could defend its democracy?
Wei-Hsiu Huang (The University of Tokyo)
- 54 The 'logic' of the South Korean general election and Japan-South Korea relations
South Korea will hold the general election in April. Yoon administration's approval rates are falling. Regional support groups of 'conservatives and progressives' and the history of democratization reveal the logic of South Korean politics.
Tadashi Kimiya (The University of Tokyo)
- 60 Increasing authoritarianism in India
The Modi administration's support for 'Hindu nationalism' suppresses minority groups. This paper clarifies the logic and method of this 'subordination to the politics' and examines the impact of the international community's tacit approval.
Kazuya Nakamizo (Kyoto University)
- 66 The 'Trump phenomenon' as a Culture War
The pressure to endorse Trump is growing. The combination of his strategy to undermine liberal dominance and the concerns of white voters, who are a demographic 'minority', is creating an upsurge in the presidential race.
Kazuhiro Maeshima (Sophia University)
- 72 Russia: A closing presidential election with no choice
Putin's victory is certain in the Russian presidential election. Why has democracy in Russia regressed so much? The following shows a salient issue in Russian politics over the past 24 years of Vladimir Putin's presidency.
Akiyoshi Komaki (Asahi Shimbun)
- 78 Ukraine's political reform under Zelensky
Ukraine, which maintains democracy, has a horizontal and polarized political structure under a 'semi-presidential' system. The current issues of the Zelensky administration are examined in light of the history of democratization at the end of the Soviet Union.
Hideya Matsuzaki (Tsudajuku University)