

DIPLOMACY

Vol.86,Jul./ Aug. 2024

Contents of Features

74 Afghanistan in Focus: Three Years under the Taliban

The Taliban regime strives to ensure security, but has severely restricted women's rights. Governance according to Islamic law is also causing widespread antipathy. What will be the future of governance? What would the relations with international terrorist organizations be?
Kenta Aoki (Middle East Research Institute)

80 After Their Majesties the Emperor and Empress of Japan's State Visit to the United Kingdom

Mr. Hayashi, who was involved in the visit as Ambassador to the U.K., explains the significance of the visit.
Hajime Hayashi (Ambassador to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland)

90 From Shooting to the Republican National Convention: Seven Days of Trump That Changed the Course of the Presidential Race

The impact of the shooting against former President Trump has had a major impact on all sides. Read about the changes in the Republican Party, the Democratic Party, and Trump himself.
Takayuki Nishiyama (Seikei University)

94 Gaza Crisis: Can the ICC's "Arrest Warrants" Enforce International Law?

What is the International Criminal Court (ICC) arrest warrant system? What are the barriers to enforcement? This report analyzes from a practical point of view.
Megumi Ochi (Ritsumeikan University)

100 Iran's Presidential Election: The Reformist's Victory and the Revolutionary System

Expectations are high for a reformist president. Pezeshkian will ease restrictions on women's clothing and the Internet. Aiming for lifting sanctions, but continue anti-Israel line.
Kana Sato (Institute of Energy Economics)

106 South Africa's General Election: Political Consequences of the Defeat of the Ruling ANC

The ruling party, the African National Congress (ANC), broke away from corruption, far left, and nationalism. However, ANC lost its majority in election. Will the coalition government, the Government of National Unity (GNU), function?
Keiichi Shirato (Ritsumeikan University)

112 The G7 Apulia Summit: Italian Prime Minister Meloni Skillfully Navigates the Issues

Prime Minister Meloni, who has the most solid base of government among the G7 leaders, showed her leadership skills at the summit. We look at her initiatives, including the selection of the host city and the security issues on which she took joint steps.
Takeshi Ito (University of Tokyo)

118 New President Lai Ching-te and the will of Taiwanese

In his inaugural speech, he emphasized the maintenance of the status quo and Taiwan's identity, but where does the will of the Taiwanese lie? We will find out from public opinion polls.
Takeshi Watanabe (Kyorin University)

124 Singapore: First New Prime Minister in 20 Years

Lawrence Wong was inaugurated as the fourth prime minister. However, the "successful model" of the past has been shaken by such factors as worsening inequality. New governance is required.
Keiko Tamura (University of Kitakyushu)

130 Japan and Canada: Strategies for Deepening Relations

Kanji Yamanouchi (Ambassador to Canada)

136 Toward the UN Summit of the Future: Human Security Today

(Special Advisor to the UN Secretary-General)

Can Europe Play a Role in the International Order?

6 Is Europe's Strategic Autonomy Possible?

Europe has a major role to play in stabilizing the international order. However, the bipolarization of domestic politics is serious, and there are so many external and internal challenges for Europe.

Yuichi Hosoya (Keio University)

12 EU-Japan Cooperation Layered from Security to DX

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the establishment of the EU delegation in Japan. The EU Ambassador discusses the role of Japan and the EU in stabilizing the international order. He also speaks upon security, DX and AI.

Jean-Eric Paquet (EU Ambassador to Japan)

20 Roundtable: NATO "institutionalize" the support for Ukraine

Europe sustains the support for Ukraine. However, it will be affected by "Ukraine fatigue" and the U.S. presidential election. Yoshikazu Hirose (National Defense Academy), Yuichiro Miyashita (Hosei University) and Yuichi Morii (University of Tokyo)

30 European Citizens' Political Consciousness and the EU's Way Forward

This paper explores the attitudes of European citizens based on their voting behavior in the European parliamentary elections held in June. We will read the direction of the EU in terms of immigration, environmental issues, and the response to the war in Ukraine.

Ryo Nakai (University of Tokyo)

36 French General Election: Why the Far Right Could Not Win?

The far-right National Coalition, which had raised hopes of becoming the first party, ultimately fell short of becoming the third party. The two extremes emerged and the center-right was buried, but the real loser was President Macron.

Toru Yoshida (Doshisha University)

42 Did Brexit Make the British People Happy?

The Conservative Party suffered a big defeat in the general election because of the diversification of its support base due to Brexit intensified intra-party conflicts. The new prime minister, Starmer will have a difficult time managing his government.

Daisuke Ikemoto (Meiji Gakuin University)

48 Estonia's Strategy as a "Fortress" of Democracy and Security

We focus on Estonia's survival strategy, which is at the forefront of the security debate. How is the security environment? How to ensure resilience against cyber attacks by Russia?

Sanshiro Hosaka (Estonian Center for International Defense and Security)

54 Dialogue: Europe's Hesitation on China Between Political Caution and Economic Opportunity

Although the euphoria over the "One Belt, One Road" initiative has faded and views on China have become more severe, China remains a highly attractive economic partner. What lies ahead of Europe-China relations?

Akio Takahara (Tokyo Woman's Christian University) and Keiko Yoshioka (Budapesti Corvinus Egyetem)

FOCUS Indian General Elections and the South Asian Power Map

62 "Modi's Promise" Setback

In the Indian general election, the media and opposition parties were suppressed, but the election itself was held fairly. Why did the ruling party lose seats? What will be the impact on international relations?

Kazutoshi Tamari (Chukyo University)

68 South Asian Island Countries: The Reality of "Pro-India" and "Pro-China" Relations

South Asian island countries seem to change their "pro-India" and "pro-China" stance every time there is a change of government. However, we will discard this preconceived notion and look at the diplomacy of each country from various perspectives, including politics, diplomacy, and geopolitical factors.

Etsuyo Arai (JETRO)