草擬改修ニ關シ請訓ノ件

(17) Italian Minister for Foreign Affairs has become active in favor of treaty revision. This opportunity must not be lost to secure early conclusion and I submit for your earliest decision the following propositions:

First, to modify our draft entirely after the English Treaty except that part relating to conventional tariff, regarding which Italian Government are still considering.

Secondly, to exchange protocol or note concerning to (?) the most favored (nation) treatment of importation, exportation and coasting trade to the effect that if the provisions in these respects are found, after experience, prejudicial to the interest of either party, they shall be subject to necessary modifications at any time.

(18) Italian Minister for Foreign Affairs withdrew the proposal for mutual understanding on the most favored nation clause, but he strongly insists on the identification of the new treaty to the English and also open declaration by me in separate note of maximum amounts of duties which Japanese Government intend to impose in statutory tariff on the following articles of Italian peculiarity, namely common wine, olive oil, macaroni and paste Venetian glass wares, corals, worked furnitures, marbles, not worked marbles, worked quinine salt and other alcoholate. He has agreed to slight increase of duties on them, but advised to make it as little as possible. In insisting on this proposal, he argued that the amount of importation does not justify distinction between conventional and statutory tariffs because if it is small the trade must be encouraged.

I am also given to understand that such declaration is necessary to appease political opponents of the Italian Government. If you can agree to the above proposal, which will not interfere with tariff autonomy, inform me as soon as possible the amounts of duties which will be imposed on said articles.

(19) If you can not agree to the proposed declaration of the amounts of duties on Italian articles on account of general tariff being subject to the consent of Diet, there seems to be no alternative other than conventional arrangement for those articles which are most peculiar and important for Italy such as common wine, marble, glass wares etc. Instruct by telegraph one way or others (the other?) with authority to decide articles for conventional tariff if it is preferable as I wish to sign new treaty before the meeting of Italian Parliament next week which contains dangerous elements against Cabinet.

because it is impossible to pledge future legislation by treaty. It is no doubt desirable to appease Italian Parliamentary opposition, but we cannot accept views that volume of trade is immaterial to determine (the) question. In our proposals we assigned to statutory tariff all articles of luxury and all articles which practically require no protection against high duties together with all articles whose import does not amount to yen 50,000. Under (the) rule adopted by Japanese Government and accepted by Great Britain for making division of tariffs, not one of the articles enumerated in your telegram 18 would come under Conventional tariff. The average imports from Italy for 1891, 1892 & 1893 was yen 88,000 and for (the) first six months, 1894, yen 43,000. The average value of the imports for 1891, 1892 & 1893 of all articles enumerated in your telegram 18, except coral beads which amounted to yen 51,000, was less than yen 14,000. If we should accept Italian proposal now, we would be compelled to transfer between 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 Yen of imports from statutory to conventional tariff, since we would find it impossible to refuse to other Powers, having larger imports, (the) same concessions we grant to Italy. If Italian Minister for Foreign Affairs still insists upon his demands, you may propose finally insertion of (the) following clause at (the) end of Article I of (the) Protocol.

"It is however understood that in the event the application of the most favoured nation principle regarding Customs duties which is guaranteed by the Treaty signed this day as well as by this Protocol should hereafter prove unsatisfactory in actual practice, the two Governments will arrange to substitute Conventional tariffs in respect of those articles in the export of which they are each especially interested."

This is (the) limit of concessions on (the) part of Japanese Government. Try to arrange on this basis. You may mention that U. S. Government waived conventional tariff, although their annual imports average over Yen 6,000,000.

No. 1078. (12) Since Italian Government intend to make English text neutral language to rule dispute, can they not dispense with both Italian and Japanese texts, using English text alone? But, if they insist upon using both Italian and Japanese texts beside English, I hope they can find some Italian there who understands Japanese to compare both texts with Adachi instead of sending Japanese text to Italian Minister in Japan for certifying it. Otherwise, there will be unnecessary delay. You may also mention that when Japanese Mexican Treaty concluded neither of Plenipotentiaries understood Japanese or Spanish respectively, but they signed both texts mutually reposing confidence and on (the) strength of English neutral text. (20) Italian Government will waive conventional tariff, if United States Government do so. I have called for necessary information from Japanese Minister in United States. Instruct him, if necessary, to comply with my desire. New treaty requires Italian text to be attached with stipulation that the English text will rule in case of dispute, but Italian Minister for Foreign Affairs can only sign Japanese text when it is certified by Japanese Minister in Italy. This will delay ratification. Is it still necessary to attach Japanese text?

(23) Italian Minister for Foreign Affairs is favorably disposed for everything of our proposal, but owing to some opposition of obscure nature difficulty has arrived (?). They desired me to make declaration in separate note in the sense of your telegram 10 for insertion in article IV of Protocol as final concession, but they want me to make the declaration on-sided for the interest of Italy, enumerating a few articles of their production. They say this is very important to appease Parliamentary opposition. They seem, moreover, to have apprehension about increasquality of Japanese silk may prevent French weavers from making similar demand.

(25) The only possible compromise is to exchange notes to the effect that substitution of conventional tariff, in respect of articles in the export of which each country is interested, can be proposed at any time after the Protocol has gone to operation and that in case conventional tariff could not be concluded within six months after such proposal, general tariff may be imposed upon articles imported from (the) other country and the application of the most favored nation principle in this respect shall be suspended until (the) conclusion of conventional tariff. Answer before Monday morning.

ing importation of Japanese silk. How it would be, compared with the above declaration, to grant Italian Government (the) right of increasing import duty on our silk in case of necessity. Instruct me at once either way.

(24) Regarding my telegram 23, I will try to restore negotiation to the stage once attained. But, in case of necessity, can I not accept declaration of Italian Minister for Foreign Affairs to the effect that in the event the application of the most favoured nation principle regarding custom duties should hereafter prove unsatisfactory, in respect of importation of Japanese silk to Italy, Italian Government shall have (the) right of increasing them to reasonable amount? The only question appears to be whether this arrangement will not affect negotiation with France, but silver price and comparatively good

(26) I could not lose important and excellent opportunity offered on December 1st and signed New Treaty without waiting for your instruction regarding my telegram 25. Particulars will follow.

(27) New treaty signed on December 1 is similar to English (Treaty) except one article relative to neutrality of English language. In the Protocol, new clause regarding substitution of conventional tariff instructed in your telegram 10 and Paragraph 5, Article 1 of English Protocol are added, as Paragraph 2 and 3 respectively, to Article 1 of the original draft sent from Japanese Legation in Berlin. Articles 2, 3 and 5 of the English Protocol are adopted in the same form and new clause relative to neutrality of English language inserted as Article IV. Therefore Treaty and Protocol contain in the main nothing contrary to your instruction, but in order to compromise persistent demands of Italian Minister of Agriculture and Minister of Finance by showing more binding effect of Paragraph 2, Article I of the Protocol, I had to exchange note in the sense of my telegram 25. Italian Parliament will meet on December 3 and every other circumstance made situation unfavorable. I was, therefore, obliged to take this course availing (myself of the) excellent opportunity offered which may not come again for some time. If this note, however, is not acceptable, I hope you can modify it afterwards without touching main body of Treaty and Protocol. Italian Minister for Foreign Affairs hopes that this note will never be put into actual practice and asked me to communicate to Japanese Government that in concluding new treaty Italian Government have been animated by sincere wishes for independence and prosperity of Japan. 交換文書ニ付解説ノ件

(29) Commercial side of my reason for the note regarding substitution of conventional tariff is among others as follows:

The note is not without fault (?) as long as Japanese trade with Italy remains in our favor, but other countries which will not have conventional tariff (such as) Russia, Spain (and) Belgium import into more than export from Japan. Such note will be, therefore, rather in their disadvantage if they exchange with us. (下略) has been brought up as to the construction of Diplomatic Notes regarding enforcement of general tariff in case of non-agreement of conventional tariff and they insist that the Notes should be so interpreted as to give both parties (the) right of enforcing general tariff after six months, without settlement of conventional tariff proposed by either party, but not so as to give such right to the proposing party only. As I reported.....?recommended that interpretation of Italian Parliament should be adopted as there can be no virtual difference. Answer at once as there is no time to lose.

Monsieur le Ministre,

I have read from some newspapers of the city that my explanation regarding certain questions raised in connection with the Italo-Japanese Treaty was not found quite clear by the Treaty Committee of the House. While I can not find myself what points have been left without full explanation, I may be permitted to say that if anything is meant about the wording or expression of my last note (dated 10th instant), I am perfectly ready at any time to modify it so as to conform to a more legal and definite form of expression. In case, therefore, Your Excellency should find such modification necessary, I shall be indebted by your saying so.

Monsieur le Ministre,

Please accept my best thanks for your kind letter of to-day. In fact, some member of the Commission expressed a doubt about the meaning of the words of Your Excellency's letter dated July 10th that both of parties may be considered etc., as if the words may be should be considered to imply a supposition rather than an affirmation. I considered it necessary to ask from Your Excellency any new statement on that point, for I can not conceive those expressions as having any other meaning than the full affirmation (of the?) right for both Parties.

Believe me

Monsieur le Ministre,

Thanking for Your Excellency's kind letter of the day before yesterday informing me of the nature of a question raised by some of the honorable members of the Treaty Committee about the meaning of my note of the 10th instant, I had no other idea than the full affirmation in using the words "may be considered etc.". I might therefore have said just as well in a more direct manner that each or both of the Parties shall have the right etc., but I used the words in question simply because the tletter of the 10th instant was written for the purpose of interpretation of another note.

Monsieur le Ministre,

Je dois vous prier de vouloir bien consentir que le terme fixé au 30 Juillet courant pour l'échange des ratifications du traité de commerce Italo-Japonais soit prorogé jusqu'au jour 8 du prochain Août.

Aujourd'hui même ce traité-là a été approuvé par la Chambre des Députés, qui n'a pas pu le faire plutôt à cause de la quantité des travaux urgents, dont Elle a dû jusqu'à présent pourvoir, et le jour qui reste, n'est pas du tout suffi pour les formalités à accomplir au Sénat dont l'approbation est toutefois nécessaire pour procéder à l'échange des ratifications.

J'attendrai de Votre courtoisie une réponse dont je ne doute pas qu'elle ne soit favorable, et les deux communications formeront foi de l'accord formel pour cette nouvelle prorogation.

Agréer, Monsieur le Ministre, &c., &c., &c.

No. 339. A. Negotiations with Great Britain practically concluded. Now Treaty to be signed very soon. You will take first favorable opportunity to sound French Government as to their willingness to open negotiations in Paris for Treaty revision upon following basis:

I. Treaty to be reciprocal in all provisions. All unilateral clauses admitted in former negotiations being suppressed

II. Unilateral questions relating to Tariff, foreign Settlements and adhesion by Japan to International Industrial property and copy-right conventions, to be arranged in Protocol.

III. Consular Jurisdiction to cease when Treaty takes effect and whole Empire to be opened at the same time.

IV. New Treaty to take effect some years hence upon one years previous notice from Japanese Government. Time during which Treaty remains in abeyance being dependent upon actual date of signature such time not being less than five years from present date. Japanese Government engage by self-denying diplomatic note not to give previous notice above referred to until codes hitherto promulgated have been brought into operation.

V. More important articles of imports to be subject to conventional tariff.
Remaining articles to come under general statutory Tariff.

VI. Tariff to take effect exceptionally a few months after exchange of ratifications of Treaty. Actual date being dependent upon date of conclusion of new Treaty, but in no case to exceed six months.
