Report of the Peacebuilding Commission

Report of the Peacebuilding Commission on its tenth session

I. Introduction

1. The present report has been prepared pursuant to General Assembly resolution 60/180 and Security Council resolution 1645 \(2005\), in which the Peacebuilding Commission was requested to submit an annual report to the General Assembly for an annual debate and review. The report will also be submitted to the Council, pursuant to its resolution 1646 \(2005\), for an annual debate. The report covers the tenth session of the Commission, held from 1 January to 31 December 2016.

2. On 27 April 2016, the General Assembly and the Security Council adopted parallel, substantively identical, resolutions on the review of the United Nations peacebuilding architecture (General Assembly resolution 70/262 and Security Council resolution 2282 \(2016\)), by which the two organs, inter alia, requested the Peacebuilding Commission to include, in its annual reports, information on progress made in reviewing its working methods and provisional rules of procedure and encouraged the Commission, through its Organizational Committee, to consider diversifying its working methods to enhance its efficiency and flexibility in support of sustaining peace. The structure and content of the present report therefore includes information on the work undertaken by the Commission in implementing the relevant recommendations contained in the resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture, while also reflecting the priorities identified in the annual report of the Commission on its ninth session (A/70/714-S/2016/115).

II. Work of the Peacebuilding Commission

A. Peacebuilding and sustaining peace: opportunities and challenges

3. The Commission embarked on the work of its tenth session in the spirit of examining the far-reaching recommendations of the report of the Advisory Group of Experts on the Review of the Peacebuilding Architecture (A/69/968-S/2015/490)

and implementing the above-mentioned resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture adopted by the General Assembly and the Security Council. Both the Assembly and the Council, in those resolutions, define sustaining peace as:

a goal and a process to build a common vision of a society, ensuring that the needs of all segments of the population are taken into account, which encompasses activities aimed at preventing the outbreak, escalation, continuation and recurrence of conflict, addressing root causes, assisting parties to conflict to end hostilities, ensuring national reconciliation, and moving towards recovery, reconstruction and development, and emphasizing that sustaining peace is a shared task and responsibility that needs to be fulfilled by the Government and all other national stakeholders, and should flow through all three pillars of the United Nations engagement at all stages of conflict, and in all its dimensions, and needs sustained international attention and assistance

In those resolutions, the Assembly and the Council also called for the strengthening of the Commission, its convening and bridging role and its partnerships with other stakeholders, including the international financial institutions, in addition to addressing country-specific situations. They also called for better intergovernmental coherence, partnerships and operational and policy coherence and invited the Secretary-General to provide options on increasing, restructuring and better prioritizing funding dedicated to United Nations peacebuilding activities.

4. Throughout the reporting period, the Commission continued to address the situations in Burundi, the Central African Republic, Guinea, Guinea-Bissau, Liberia and Sierra Leone. Since the eruption of the political crisis in Burundi in 2015, the Commission has intensified its focus on that country. Through visits to Burundi and the region, the Council's Burundi configuration has engaged with the Government and national stakeholders, encouraging a peaceful solution by Burundians, with regional and international support, including that of the African Union, the East African Community and neighbouring countries. During his two visits to Burundi and the region, the Chair of the Burundi configuration also engaged the authorities of the United Republic of Tanzania, Rwanda, the African Union and the mediator of the East African Community, the former President of the Republic of Tanzania, Benjamin Mkapa, highlighting the importance of a holistic peacebuilding approach based on the three pillars of the United Nations system, as they are outlined, inter alia, in General Assembly resolution 60/251, and of local capacities for peace, including the constructive work of the group of women mediators. In another example of the convening power of the Commission, and its capacity to add value, it championed policy discussions on the economic impact of the political crisis in Burundi, including through consultations in Geneva on the country's socioeconomic situation, briefings with officials from the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and Government authorities in charge of finance and the economy, and with representatives of the private sector in Burundi, with a focus on relations between the Government and its international partners.

5. On the Central African Republic, the Commission sought to sustain the political momentum offered by the peaceful conduct of elections in 2016 through its engagement in a peacebuilding and recovery process. The Chair of the Central African Republic configuration attended the ninth meeting of the International Contact Group on the Central African Republic, supported the process of mobilizing partners around the national recovery and peacebuilding plan and convened a meeting, on 2 November 2016, in preparation for the donors conference of Brussels, attended by the two main partners of the conference, the European Union and the World Bank, which helped to highlight the urgent need for support for the country. At the Brussels conference for the Central African Republic, held on 17 November 2016, the international community came together to signal its renewed engagement and support for the country by pledging over €2 billion for the implementation of the comprehensive National Recovery and Peacebuilding Plan 2017-2021.

6. With regard to Guinea, the Commission focused on efforts aimed at consolidating the gains achieved over the past five years. The Guinea configuration organized a policy discussion on the reform of the justice sector through a meeting with the Guinean Minister of Justice in May 2016, providing the Government with a platform to present its strategy in the area of justice, and an opportunity for partners to respond in terms of political support and financial resources. In an important initiative, in line with the resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture, the Commission and the Government of Guinea have initiated a review of their engagement in order to highlight progress made and lessons learned, and to guide the decision on the future engagement of Guinea with the Commission. In this context, a delegation from the Commission, composed of representatives of Burkina Faso, Guinea and Japan, visited Guinea from 20 to 25 November 2016. The delegation discussed the priorities of future engagement with the Government of Guinea, as well as its possible form, taking into account the recommendation contained in the resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture that the Commission consider diversifying its working methods to enhance its efficiency and flexibility. The conclusions and recommendations of the review will be considered by the Commission in January 2017.

7. With regard to the situation in Guinea-Bissau, the Commission continued to mobilize its members, especially regional actors, to mitigate the fragile situation as well as any possible recurrence of tensions. Aligning itself with the efforts led by the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS), the Commission supported the subregional efforts and provided input to the deliberations of the Security Council. It also maintained focus on the follow-up to the donors round table of 2015, at which the Government of Guinea-Bissau presented a national strategy of social progress for the next 10 years, aimed at the promotion of governance and institutional reforms based on inclusiveness and tolerance, as well as on the sustainable and equitable use of its natural capital and resources.

8. In partnership with the Government of Liberia, key stakeholders and United Nations actors, the Commission prioritized two issues during the reporting period: the revision of the 2010 statement of mutual commitments (SMC) between the Government of Liberia and the Commission and the articulation of its advice to the Security Council on peacebuilding priorities that need to be taken into consideration during and beyond the political transition of 2017 in Liberia and the transition of the presence of the United Nations Mission in Liberia (UNMIL). Comprehensive and inclusive consultations with a broad range of national and international stakeholders in Liberia and within the United Nations system led to a revised statement of mutual commitments, which was endorsed by the Government of Liberia and the Commission and rolled out in May 2016. The peacebuilding priority areas identified in the revised statement of mutual commitments are: security sector development; strengthening the rule of law; promoting national reconciliation; and peaceful and inclusive elections in 2017. In anticipation of the deliberations by the Security Council on the future of UNMIL in December 2016, the Vice-Chair of the Commission visited Liberia in October and co-hosted a multi-stakeholder forum on “Sustaining peace through transition in Liberia”. The discussion focused on how to ensure that the root causes of the conflict were being addressed during and beyond transition, and what support to sustaining peace in Liberia should look like post-UNMIL. The forum signalled the commitment of Liberia to work towards a successful transition process post-UNMIL and provided an important opportunity to identify longer term peacebuilding priorities in light of the Security Council’s upcoming decision on the future presence of the United Nations in the country.

9. In March 2016, the Chair of the Commission’s Sierra Leone configuration led the second expert-level peacebuilding assessment mission in Sierra Leone to take stock of progress made on peacebuilding priorities since the last such mission in November 2013. As part of the visit by the Chair of the Commission to West Africa in June 2016 to explore the subregional peacebuilding opportunities and challenges in the region during its recovery from the Ebola outbreak, there was an opportunity to further discuss the future role of the Sierra Leone configuration in the post-Ebola period, especially in light of the request of the Security Council that the Commission review its engagement with a view to scaling down its role in 2013 as the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Sierra Leone (UNIPSIL) was drawing down (see resolution 2097 \(2013\)). The draft report of the assessment mission was presented to the members of the Commission at a meeting of the Sierra Leone configuration on 7 December 2016 for further consideration. At the same meeting, in light of the request of the Government of Sierra Leone that the Commission remain engaged through the 2018 presidential and parliamentary elections, the Commission was briefed by a range of stakeholders on the status of preparations for the upcoming elections.

B. Towards a more flexible Peacebuilding Commission

Regional issues, including sustained attention on the long-term impacts of the Ebola outbreak

10. Building on its previous experience, the Commission continued to work in a flexible way and to use the platform of its Organizational Committee to convene regional, country-specific and thematic discussions. The Commission was particularly successful in addressing peacebuilding challenges and opportunities in West Africa from three distinct angles. On 18 January 2016, the Commission, with the consent of all the countries concerned, convened a meeting on “Peacebuilding trends and threats in West Africa”, which benefited from in-depth briefings by the Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for West Africa. The meeting offered an opportunity to convene regional and subregional discussions of the Commission and to highlight the positive signs emerging from the region in 2015, in particular in terms of democratic developments and electoral processes. The Commission discussed the challenges the region was facing, including violent extremism and cross-border security, and stressed the need for stronger synergies within the United Nations system and a more prominent role for the Commission in peacebuilding and sustaining peace so that it may be able to adequately assist in addressing these challenges.

11. On 6 April 2016, the Commission convened a meeting on the subregional dimensions of peacebuilding in West Africa, which provided an opportunity for a discussion with senior representatives of the Department of Peacekeeping Operations, the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the Peacebuilding Support Office on a number of regional challenges to peacebuilding and the role the Commission could play in supporting the efforts of countries, including Burkina Faso, Côte d'Ivoire and Mali, to achieve sustainable peace, if requested. Representatives at the meeting also welcomed the efforts to enhance coherence within the United Nations system, particularly between the Department of Political Affairs, the Department of Peacekeeping Operations and UNDP and discussed the important work being undertaken by regional and subregional organizations in West Africa and the need to further strengthen their partnership with the Commission. It was noted that the advisory role of the Commission was of particular importance during the drawdown of peacekeeping operations, and it was also stressed that capacity-building, the extension of State authority and the strengthening of peoples and communities living along borders were prerequisites in taking on cross-border peacebuilding challenges. In this connection, the meeting recognized the important contribution of the Peacebuilding Fund, particularly in its support to cross-border initiatives in Liberia, Côte d'Ivoire, Niger, Burkina Faso and Mali.

12. From 9 to 18 June 2016, the Chair of the Commission made a visit to West Africa to explore the subregional peacebuilding opportunities and challenges in the region, which was on the road to recovery after the Ebola outbreak. The delegation focused on national and regional recovery efforts, particularly on the political and socioeconomic priorities, and discussed and identified opportunities for constructive engagement of the Commission and the international community with various national stakeholders from the subregion. The Chair made a commitment to remain engaged in national and regional issues concerning Guinea, Liberia, Sierra Leone and the subregion of Mano River Basin, and to ensure a coherent and coordinated approach to sustaining peace. He also gave reassurances of the Commission's availability to continue serving as a forum for sustaining international attention, including by bringing attention to emerging national and regional needs, opportunities and challenges, as required.

Cross-cutting issues

13. The Commission continued its consideration of the theme "Financing for peacebuilding", initiated in 2015, with discussions on Papua New Guinea and Somalia, in accordance with paragraph 12 of General Assembly resolution 60/180 and Security Council resolution 1645 \(2005\). In this regard, on 10 October 2016, the Commission convened a meeting on financing for peacebuilding to discuss the ways in which the United Nations was assisting Kyrgyzstan to address its peacebuilding priorities, including through the support of the Peacebuilding Fund. The meeting marked an important step in the implementation of the resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture, demonstrating the flexibility of the Commission in considering cross-cutting issues and strengthening its synergies with the Peacebuilding Fund in order to fulfil its mandate. The meeting benefited from briefings by a senior representative of the Government of Kyrgyzstan, the United Nations Regional Centre for Preventive Diplomacy for Central Asia, the Resident Coordinator in Kyrgyzstan and representatives of Kyrgyz civil society organizations. Discussions focused on the progress the country had made on reconciliation and peacebuilding since 2010, with the support of the Peacebuilding Fund. Delegations commended the Fund for its catalytic, timely and critical contribution to peacebuilding and prevention efforts in Kyrgyzstan and stressed the importance of predictable and sustainable financing for the Fund. The meeting also highlighted that a regional approach and collective efforts were important elements in addressing cross-border challenges, including the rise of violent extremism, illegal drug trafficking and migration. Finally, it was noted that the Commission should continue considering the theme “Financing for peacebuilding”.

14. Following up on the adoption of Security Council resolution 2250 \(2015\) on youth, peace and security, the Commission reflected on how young people can contribute to peacebuilding, at a number of its meetings in 2016, including during its discussions focused on West Africa, the Commission’s annual session in June and in discussions on the Commission’s gender strategy. A young representative from civil society addressed the Commission at its annual session and presented the challenges faced by children, adolescents and young people in the context of the peacebuilding process and the Ebola crisis in Sierra Leone. The Chair of the Commission and the Chairs of the country configurations systematically engaged in discussions, on the role that youth can play to contribute to peacebuilding, with national counterparts during their field visits. While concerns were expressed about the engagement of some fraction of the youth population in violence, the role that young women and men could, and did, play to contribute to peace and stability was acknowledged in the Commission’s discussions in relation to young people.

Gender strategy of the Peacebuilding Commission

15. As a follow-up to the report on its ninth session, on 7 September 2016 the Commission adopted an advisory gender strategy to help guide its work on gender-related aspects of peacebuilding. The strategy was the outcome of a preparatory process that started in 2015 and of a series of consultations with Member States, practitioners, experts and representatives of relevant entities of the United Nations system conducted by the Commission during its tenth session, including a special session on the margins of the sixtieth session of the Commission on the Status of Women, which brought together civil society organizations from a number of countries on the Commission’s agenda. The strategy is a timely effort in integrating a gender dimension of peacebuilding into the work of the Commission, accelerating the momentum created by the resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture. The strategy, inter alia, underscores the importance of women’s leadership and participation in conflict prevention, resolution and peacebuilding and the substantial link between women’s meaningful involvement in those efforts, their effectiveness and their long-term sustainability.

16. Following the adoption of its gender strategy on 7 September 2016, the Commission is considering the nomination of a gender focal point from among its membership in order to advance the implementation of the strategy. The Commission and its Chair have also taken steps to implement the strategy at the country-specific level, including through discussions on women's participation in the elections in Liberia and on the implications of the UNMIL drawdown as well as during the Chair's meeting with the Special Envoy on Women, Peace and Security of the African Union, held in Addis Ababa in October 2016. In addition, the Commission invited civil society representatives from Sierra Leone to brief the Sierra Leone configuration on the participation of women and civil society in the upcoming elections.

Provisional rules of procedure and working methods of the Peacebuilding Commission

17. In implementation of paragraph 5 of the resolutions of the General Assembly and the Security Council on the review of the peacebuilding architecture, the Organizational Committee initiated a review of its provisional rules of procedure and working methods in order to make its work more flexible and effective. In this connection, and building on a non-paper prepared by the Permanent Missions of Kenya and Switzerland, the Committee convened several expert-level consultations, which culminated in a report composed of two parts: part A, implementable actions based on good practices; and part B, recommendations, which require further discussion. The Commission informally adopted part A of the report on 18 November 2016 (see annex to the present report) as a living document to guide the work of the Commission. Part A will be periodically reviewed by the Commission in its annual reports. Part B will be further discussed at the beginning of the eleventh session.

The bridging role of the Peacebuilding Commission: the work of the Commission with the General Assembly, the Security Council and the Economic and Social Council

18. The resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture call on the Commission to serve as a bridge among the principal organs and relevant entities of the United Nations, given the close interlinkages between development, peace and security and human rights. In this connection, throughout the tenth session, the Commission continued to explore ways to enhance its advisory and bridging role with the General Assembly and the Security Council. The first opportunity was the "high-level thematic debate on the United Nations, peace and security" (10 and 11 May 2016), organized by the President of the General Assembly shortly after the adoption of the resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture. The meeting, which attracted high-level participation from Member States, reaffirmed, inter alia, support for peacebuilding and for sustaining peace and confirmed the importance of synergies between the General Assembly and the Commission. In this connection, the President of the General Assembly has initiated preparations for a high-level dialogue, to be held on 24 January 2017, which will bring together the Presidents of the Security Council and the Economic and Social Council, as well as the Chair of the Commission.

19. In relation to the Security Council, the Commission engaged in active consultations through: (a) the fifth informal interactive dialogue co-organized by the President of the Council and the Chair of the Commission; (b) a periodic stocktaking at the expert level, coordinated by Egypt; and (c) formal briefings to the Council on country-specific and thematic issues. The fifth informal interactive dialogue (22 June 2016) offered an opportunity to discuss practical ways to strengthen coordination, coherence and cooperation between the Security Council and the Commission. The dialogue was held shortly after the adoption of the resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture and was structured around three main issues: transitions; the links between the work of the Commission in New York and in the field; and the relationship between the Commission and the Security Council. Discussions highlighted how the Commission, through its convening role, could contribute a peacebuilding perspective to inform the Council's decision-making process, as requested, particularly during discussions on the drawdown of peacekeeping operations. It was also noted that, in situations of transition, including from special political missions to United Nations country teams, the Security Council should regularly seek and draw upon the Commission to assist with the longer term perspective required for sustaining peace. By bringing together security and development actors, the Commission was well placed to act as a bridge between the principal organs and relevant entities of the United Nations through the sharing of advice on peacebuilding needs and priorities. The discussions also referred to the importance, for the Commission, of improving its working methods in order to enhance its efficiency and flexibility, including by strengthening its work at the regional level to fulfil its mandate.

20. In February 2016, the Organizational Committee nominated Egypt to succeed Malaysia as coordinator of the periodic stocktaking exercise of the Commission's advisory function with respect to the Security Council. Two informal expert-level meetings were held (13 April and 24 October 2016), focusing on the advisory role of the Commission in connection with country-specific situations and with regard to the intention of the Council to regularly request the advice of the Commission, as noted in paragraph 8 of its resolution 2282 \(2016\). The discussion highlighted the important role the Commission could play in support of the Council discussions on the UNMIL drawdown. Furthermore, a number of good practices that could strengthen the advisory role of the Commission were discussed, focusing on: its advisory role in connection with the situations in Burundi, the Central African Republic, Guinea-Bissau and Liberia; establishing and maintaining strong partnerships with regional organizations; and structuring and planning its work in a way that would enrich its advice to the Council.

21. With regard to thematic briefings to the Security Council, the Commission addressed the Council on a number of occasions. On 23 February 2016, at the Council's open debate on "Post-conflict peacebuilding: review of the peacebuilding architecture", the Chair underscored the importance of sustaining peace and the need for a comprehensive approach to conflict prevention and sustainable peace. He stressed that investments in prevention of the outbreak, escalation, continuation and recurrence of conflict were considerably less expensive and sustainable than reacting to crises, and that, therefore, predictable, sustained and adequate financing to address the root causes of conflict are required. The Chair also stressed that the Commission had an important role to play in ensuring coherence within the United Nations system and in functioning as a bridge between the General Assembly, the Security Council and the Economic and Social Council.

22. On 28 March 2016, the Chair, on behalf of the Commission, briefed the Council at its open debate on "Women, peace and security: the role of women in conflict prevention and resolution in Africa”. In his statement, the Chair reiterated the importance of women’s participation in approaches to peacebuilding and conflict prevention and stated that young women and men could play a role in this endeavour. The Chair stressed the significance of a systematic and efficient translation of formal commitments into concrete action on the ground and highlighted the ongoing efforts of the Commission and the Peacebuilding Fund in this regard. The Chair also noted that the adoption by the Security Council of its resolution 2250 \(2015\) on youth, peace and security was an important step towards greater inclusivity in peacebuilding, and that, through its adoption, the role young women and men can play in conflict prevention, resolution and peacebuilding was finally getting the recognition it deserved.

23. On 24 May 2016, the Chair, representing the Commission, briefed the Security Council at its open debate on the “Cooperation between the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations: United Nations-African Union Peace and Security Cooperation: Chapter VIII application and the future of the African Peace and Security Architecture”. The Chair reiterated the need to focus on conflict prevention and to address the root causes of conflict. He stressed that the peace and security challenges facing the Organization were complex and interlinked and called for a collective action. He recalled that the resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture stressed the importance of the partnership and cooperation between the United Nations and the regional and subregional organizations, in particular the African Union and added that, building on that mandate, the Commission intended to use the momentum generated by the new resolutions to further enhance and institutionalize its cooperation with the African Union.

24. On 28 July 2016, Ms. Amina C. Mohamed, Cabinet Secretary for Foreign Affairs and International Trade of Kenya, in her capacity as Chair of the Commission, briefed the Security Council at its open debate on “Peacebuilding in Africa”. The Chair noted that the Commission continued to engage with the African Union and its various regional entities in order to support peacebuilding in Africa, underscoring that genuine partnerships remained essential to sustaining peace and development in Africa and noting that peace and development could only be achieved by working together with key stakeholders, including the private sector and the civil society, at the local, provincial, national, regional and international level. In connection with the resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture, Ms. Mohamed reiterated the importance of prevention and of investing in early warning systems.

25. With regard to country-specific advice to the Security Council, the Chairs of the country-specific configurations provided the Council with substantive updates on key peacebuilding priorities defined by the respective countries. In connection with Liberia, the Vice-Chair continued to advocate for the importance of sustaining international attention on Liberia in a collective manner and stressed that a smooth transition period would ensure the country’s robust path towards further consolidation of peace. In connection with Guinea-Bissau, the meeting of the Commission in March 2016 was used as an opportunity to prepare an input for the Council’s visit to Guinea-Bissau, in line with its efforts to find a peaceful solution to the political crisis.

26. The synergies between the Security Council and the Commission were also discussed at a meeting of the Ad Hoc Working Group of the Security Council on Conflict Prevention and Resolution in Africa, entitled “Improving cooperation between the Peacebuilding Commission and the Security Council for sustaining peace in Africa”, which took place on 1 November 2016. The meeting recognized that, in view of its nature, the Commission was well placed to provide the Council with a broader perspective on sustaining peace, including when the Council was discussing the situation of countries undergoing transition.

27. In relation to the Economic and Social Council, a joint event with the Commission was organized on 24 June 2016 to discuss the theme “2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and sustaining peace”. The event, which focused on the nexus between peace and development, highlighted how sustaining peace and strong institutions were critical for achieving all of the Sustainable Development Goals and, in turn, how the entire 2030 Agenda could contribute to sustaining peace — before, during and after conflict. Member States noted that humanitarian intervention, peacebuilding and development had to be implemented in a coherent and coordinated manner, and that achieving the 2030 Agenda and sustaining peace required a more holistic and coherent approach. It was also noted that the ongoing discussions on the long-term positioning of the United Nations development system could provide opportunities to strengthen coherence and remove the competition for resources. Finally, delegations recognized the role of the development system in peacebuilding and sustaining peace, and strongly supported regular dialogue between the Economic and Social Council and the Commission to promote coherence and complementarity between the Organization’s peace and security efforts and its development, human rights and humanitarian work.

28. On 26 July 2016, the Chair was invited to brief the Economic and Social Council at its coordination and management meeting. Building on the good practices of the work of the Commission in support of African countries, the Chair underscored the importance of a multidimensional approach that went beyond the military and security responses, and of focusing on addressing the root causes of conflict in affected countries. Building on the discussions of 24 June 2016, the Chair reiterated that the Commission was uniquely placed to assist or address the peace-development-humanitarian nexus, including in relation to the 2030 Agenda, and noted that the Council and the Commission should review good practices in addressing the root causes of conflict and how the United Nations development system has integrated sustaining peace into its planning frameworks and activities.

Partnerships and engagement with other stakeholders

Third annual session of the Peacebuilding Commission (June 2016)

29. Throughout the tenth session, the Commission worked to strengthen partnerships with a number of relevant actors. On 23 June 2016, the Commission convened its third annual session to discuss the topic “Transitions as a challenge to consolidating peace and security: the role of the Commission in diplomacy and political accompaniment”. The meeting, which took place less than two months after the adoption of the resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture, represented a timely opportunity for Member States to discuss how the convening and bridging role of the Commission could support countries in the process of transition. The discussions benefited from statements made by the Deputy Secretary-General and the former Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children in Armed Conflict, and by presentations made by senior government representatives, senior officials from the United Nations and the African Union and by civil society organizations.

30. The discussion highlighted key principles to be considered when supporting countries undergoing transition. Delegations placed particular emphasis on the importance of taking into account the specific context of a country in transition and stated that planning and assessments needed to be carried out at an early stage. The meeting recognized national ownership as a priority and noted the importance of inclusivity at all levels of society, including women and youth. Furthermore, participants stressed that addressing the root causes of conflict, strengthening people's access to justice, national reconciliation and decentralization were also some of the measures that needed to be taken in order to address concerns of people during a mission's drawdown. Delegations also underscored the importance of predictable and sustainable financing, as well as the need to strengthen partnerships with regional, subregional and neighbouring countries, as well as civil society organizations.

31. In connection with the role of the Commission, participants underscored that it should advocate for sustained political, technical and financial support to countries undergoing transition. Its unique role in the United Nations system should be used to provide strategic advice to the General Assembly, Security Council and Economic and Social Council, as well as to strengthen synergies with regional and subregional actors to promote a coherent and systematic approach to supporting countries undergoing transitions.

32. On 7 September 2016, the Commission continued its consideration of peacebuilding opportunities in countries undergoing transitions at a meeting with the Secretary-General of the Mano River Union. Focusing on the countries of the subregion, the discussion proposed key priority areas, including the need to strengthen capacities at the governmental and non-governmental level, and the importance of ensuring a coherent approach of the United Nations system. In view of the ongoing transitions in Côte d'Ivoire and Liberia, the Commission recognized the important contribution of the Peacebuilding Fund, in partnership with the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire (UNOCI), UNMIL and the United Nations country teams in both countries, in developing cross-border projects and supporting both countries to strengthen their capacities at this crucial time.

33. On 7 October 2016, the Commission convened an expert-level meeting on good practices in peacebuilding, which built on the work done by the Working Group on Lessons Learned. Based on the outcome of the annual session, and in order to further explore ways in which the convening role of the Commission could support countries undergoing transitions, the meeting was held on the topic, "The challenge of sustaining peace: lessons from previous transitions". The meeting, which benefited from presentations by the Department of Political Affairs, the Department of Peacekeeping Operations, UNDP and the civil society organization, the West Africa Network for Peacebuilding in Sierra Leone, focused on the situations in Burundi, Sierra Leone and Timor-Leste and identified a number of good practices that could be replicated in order to ensure smooth transition processes. A second expert-level meeting on good practices in peacebuilding took place on 21 November 2016 on the topic “The challenge of sustaining peace: role of the Peacebuilding Commission in mission drawdown”. The second meeting focused on the ongoing transitions in Côte d’Ivoire, Guinea-Bissau and Liberia. Building on the outcome of the first meeting, the second addressed the need for early and long-term planning, which needed a system-wide approach in order to ensure that transitions did not lead to a relapse into conflict. Delegations underscored the critical role of the Commission and the Fund, in particular when working in synergy, to maintain the attention of the international community in the aftermath of transitions and to provide the support required by countries to strengthen local institutions. In connection with the advisory role of the Commission, it was reiterated that, in view of its inclusive composition and the mandate to convene a wide range of relevant stakeholders, it should engage with national Governments and authorities, civil society organizations, international financial institutions and development actors in order to provide comprehensive advice to the Security Council and improve coordination in transition settings.

Integrate the perspectives of regional actors/partnership with regional organizations

34. In response to the call of the General Assembly and the Security Council in their resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture, the Commission worked to strengthen its partnership with regional and subregional organizations, in particular the African Union. From 17 to 19 October 2016, the Commission Chairs visited the Headquarters of the African Union in Addis Ababa to explore ways to further enhance the Commission’s cooperation with the African Union Peace and Security Council in the areas of conflict prevention and sustaining peace across Africa. The delegation was led by the Chair of the Commission and included the Vice-Chairs and the Assistant Secretary-General for Peacebuilding Support. The delegation held a meeting with the African Union Peace and Security Council, which was chaired by the Permanent Representative of Kenya to the African Union and attended by the 15 members of the Council: Algeria, Botswana, Burundi, Chad, the Congo, Egypt, Kenya, Niger, Nigeria, Rwanda, Sierra Leone, South Africa, Togo, Uganda and Zambia. The permanent members of the Security Council, Angola and Senegal, were also invited to attend. On 19 October 2016, the delegation also attended the workshop on the 10 years of the African Union policy on post-conflict reconstruction and development, organized by the African Union Commission.

35. Meetings and consultations with the African Union highlighted the strategic partnership between the United Nations and the African Union in the areas of peace and security, in line with Chapter VIII of the Charter of the United Nations. Specifically, members of the African Union Peace and Security Council highlighted the Union’s effort on peacebuilding in line with the development and implementation of the post-conflict reconstruction and development policy framework, adopted by the African Union in 2006, as well as the African Solidarity Initiative. It was suggested that the Commission and the Peace and Security Council hold regular consultations, including a formal annual meeting. Following the visit of the Chair of the Commission, the Peace and Security Council issued a communiqué on the possibility of carrying out joint visits to conflict-affected areas in Africa and of the sharing of good practices in addressing conflict prevention and sustaining peace challenges. On 17 November 2016, the Chair reported to the Commission on the main findings of his visit to the African Union. The meeting, which also benefited from a briefing by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General to the African Union, was an opportunity to express the appreciation of the Chair and the Commission for the visit to Addis Ababa and to highlight the importance of strengthening synergies between the Commission and the African Union in the areas of peacebuilding and sustaining peace, underlining that both institutions should work to better address the root causes of conflict and support institution-building.

36. Building on the visits of the Commission's Chairs and the discussions on the regional, cross-border and transnational peacebuilding challenges in West Africa, the Commission also continued to enhance its partnership with the subregional organizations on efforts towards sustaining peace in Africa, in particular with ECOWAS and the Mano River Union. The Commission also worked to strengthen its partnership with the East African Community, in support of the national and regional mediation efforts in Burundi. In Guinea-Bissau, the Commission continued to provide a useful platform for engagement of countries from the region, including Portuguese-speaking countries, particularly in assisting to prevent further escalation of the political crisis of 2015.

37. On 23 September 2016, Ms. Amina C. Mohamed, in her capacity as Chair of the Commission, and Mr. Samura Kamara, Minister for Foreign Affairs of Sierra Leone and Chair of the Group of Seven Plus (g7+), co-chaired a meeting with members of the Commission and of the Group on the theme: "Peer-learning among fragile and conflict-affected countries on sustaining peace and sustainable development". During the event, the special envoy of the Group launched the "g7+ Foundation", which will document some of the unique experiences of the Group for the benefit of other countries in pursuit of peace and resilience.

Partnership with the World Bank and other international financial institutions

38. The Commission worked in close partnership with international financial institutions throughout the period of its tenth session. The Vice-Chair attended a meeting of the World Bank, held in Washington, D.C. on 1 to 3 March 2016, on the Banks' "Fragility and conflict forum", which presented an opportunity to discuss how the Commission and the Bank could enhance their collaboration in support of conflict-affected countries.

39. At a meeting of the Commission on 7 September 2016, the Assistant Secretary-General for Peacebuilding Support reported on the decision of the United Nations and the World Bank to work on a joint policy study on the role of development in efforts to assist Member States to prevent violent conflict. He noted that the study, conducted by a joint United Nations-World Bank core team (including the Peacebuilding Support Office, the Department for Political Affairs, the Department of Peacekeeping Operations, and UNDP on the United Nations side), intended to improve the understanding of the potential role of development policies and programmes in conflict prevention, and to provide recommendations on how development actors could strengthen conflict prevention efforts. The Commission was encouraged to provide an important platform to advance the discussion as the study could provide an opportunity for further consultations between the Commission and the Executive Directors of the World Bank.

40. At the country-specific level, the World Bank, IMF, the African Development Bank and the European Union actively engaged on policy discussions on Burundi, the Central African Republic and Guinea-Bissau. In Liberia, the revised statement of mutual commitments of 2016 proved to be useful framework to initiate a joint World Bank and UNMIL financial review, building on the public expenditure review issued in January 2013. The review will inform the Government of the different options for affordable security service packages over the next five years, as well as the level and potential sources of financing. It will also enable Liberia to consider better ways of allocating resources to peacebuilding priorities, including a consideration of their affordability, in order to ensure the most efficient and effective use of resources.

41. To ensure that the fragile and hard-won stability in the Central African Republic will be sustainable, the United Nations worked with the World Bank and the European Union to support the Government in undertaking a recovery and peacebuilding assessment, which helped in the development of the National Recovery and Peacebuilding Plan, 2017-2021 and with the preparations of the international donors conference for the Central African Republic held in Brussels on 17 November 2016. The assessment identified urgent needs at $120 per capita, more than twice the actual aid provided in 2012, and included measures aimed at strengthening security, supporting political reconciliation and inclusion and boosting economic recovery. Based on this assessment, donors have pledged 2.06 billion euros ($2.2 billion) to help rebuild the war-torn country, including $500 million over the next three years from the World Bank.

42. In regard to Burundi, the Chair of the Burundi configuration, in collaboration with the Resident Coordinator, organized socioeconomic consultations in Geneva, on 7 and 8 November 2016, with representatives of the World Bank, IMF, the African Development Bank, the European Union and the relevant entities of the United Nations system. During the consultations, the representatives were able to: (a) compare their assessments of the macroeconomic and socioeconomic situation, including the impact of the political crisis on the economy; (b) examine current responses to the socioeconomic challenges; and (c) discuss opportunities to assist Burundi in responding to the socioeconomic challenges with greater policy coherence among partners and with a peacebuilding approach. The outcome of the consultations was shared with the Government and the Commission for consideration.

Financing for peacebuilding: strengthening the synergies between the Peacebuilding Commission and the Peacebuilding Fund

43. In implementation of the resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture, and building on its previous work, the Commission continued to strengthen synergies with the Peacebuilding Fund by ensuring a better flow of information from the Fund to the Commission in two ways: (a) inviting the Peacebuilding Support Office to provide updates on the work of the Fund at regional or country-specific meetings of the Commission; and (b) inviting the Chair and members of the Advisory Group of the Peacebuilding Fund to brief the Commission on the findings emerging from the regular meetings of the Advisory Group, such as on the occasion of the meeting of the Commission of 14 December. More coherence between the Commission and the Fund was also sought through briefings to the Commission by countries receiving financing from the Fund, including at the meeting on Kyrgyzstan held on 10 October 2016.

44. The need to strengthen the synergies between the Commission and the Fund was also addressed during the Commission's discussion of its provisional rules of procedure and working methods. It was noted that, while recognizing the need to preserve the independence of the Fund, more regular briefings on the ongoing projects of the Fund from Peacebuilding Support Office and the Advisory Group of the Fund are required.

III. Conclusions and agenda going forward

45. The upcoming reporting period will present an important opportunity for the Commission to demonstrate successful implementation of the resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture. In that regard, the Commission will continue to pursue several important work streams that could further strengthen its country-specific and policy-related engagements.

A. Implementation of the resolutions on the review of the peacebuilding architecture

The Commission will also strengthen its collaboration with international financial institutions and with regional organizations.

Action:

(a) The Organizational Committee will convene informal discussions with the participation of relevant United Nations entities, international financial institutions, regional organizations and development banks, with the aim of exploring those specific policy areas requiring further elaboration during the fourth annual session. Action:

The Organizational Committee, with a view to ensuring that it is constantly informed of the activities of the Peacebuilding Fund, will convene periodic meetings with Peacebuilding Support Office or with members of the Advisory Group of the Fund.

Annex

Working methods of the Peacebuilding Commission

Part A: implementable actions based on good practices

(informally adopted by the Commission on 18 November 2016)

The present document contains recommendations whose objectives and outcomes have been established as good practices, and that can be addressed through an informal process. These recommendations are accompanied by relevant examples. It also includes additional action areas whose implementation can contribute to the efficiency and flexibility of the Commission. The Commission can implement all of these actions without the need to amend its provisional rules of procedure. The recommendations are all within the mandate of the founding resolutions of the Commission, General Assembly resolution 60/180 and Security Council resolution 1645 (2005), as well as Assembly resolution 70/262 and Council resolution 2282 (2016). The review of the Commission's working methods is an ongoing process and this informal document will be reviewed periodically, through the Commission's annual reports, in order to assess the added value of the recommendations to the work of the Commission.

Recommendations

1. Leadership: The Commission should improve the continuity of its Chairs and Vice-Chairs.

Action:

- I. As mandated by paragraph 5 of both General Assembly resolution 70/262 and Security Council resolution 2282 (2016), which encourage the Commission to improve the continuity of its Chairs and Vice-Chairs, and building upon the established practice of having the outgoing Chair serve as Vice-Chair, thus ensuring continuity and support to its leadership, the Commission will continue to explore ways to further strengthen the continuity of its Chairs and Vice-Chairs. Any informal arrangement will not prejudice the change in the membership of the Commission, which takes place every two years and will operate within regional rotation of Chairs, as spelled out in annex I of the Commission's provisional rules of procedure. The decision to endorse a candidate for each post remains a prerogative of the respective regional groups, for action by the Organizational Committee.

Good practices: over the past few sessions, the outgoing Chair served as Vice-Chair, thus ensuring continuity and support to the incoming Chair.

2. Forms of engagement of the Commission: While recognizing the value of the work done by the Commission, including through country-specific configurations, the Commission should consider flexible options for other forms of engagement, including a more engaged role of the Organizational Committee.

Actions:

- I. Make greater use of the Organizational Committee as a platform to convene country-specific, regional and thematic discussions, with the consent of all countries concerned, in accordance with its founding resolutions. When convening regional discussions, references to country-specific situations will be made with the consent of those countries.
- II. Promote a Commission that can work in a form of “variable geometry”, where the character, focus, and duration of its engagement are decided on an ad hoc basis in order to strengthen its efficiency and flexibility.

Good practices: the meetings of the Peacebuilding Commission on Burkina Faso, the Commission’s continuing regional/subregional approach and the thematic discussions on financing for peacebuilding, which included Papua New Guinea, Somalia and Kyrgyzstan.

3. Role of the membership: the Commission has a very diverse membership, bringing together seven members from the General Assembly, seven members from the Security Council, seven members from the Economic and Social Council, five members from the top troop-contributing countries and five members from the top financial contributors. Therefore, a stronger engagement of all members of the Commission will further enhance its efficiency.

Actions:

- I. Make a greater use of the perspectives of the organs that elect or designate the members of the Commission: in addition to country-specific interests, Member States elected by the General Assembly, the Security Council and the Economic and Social Council are encouraged to bring perspectives of those bodies into the deliberations of the Commission. For example, members can offer advice on the working methods of their constituencies and can highlight relevant ongoing thematic issues in their respective organs that will add value to the work of the Commission and reinforce synergies between the Commission and the General Assembly, the Security Council, the Economic and Social Council and the relevant subsidiary bodies, while respecting the mandate of each body.
- II. Members are encouraged to report back to their constituencies on the work done by the Peacebuilding Commission on priority areas that are relevant for the work of their respective organs or groups, and to be champions of sustaining peace. This will add to the visibility of the Commission and enhance clarity on the work of the Commission. Similarly, establishing a predictable workplan (see action 3 below) and summarizing results on a regular basis can lead to a more regular flow of information between the Commission and the General Assembly, the Security Council and the Economic and Social Council.
- III. Peacebuilding Commission to nominate Member States which express interest in being focal points, championing thematic issues and initiatives, such as the implementation of the Commission’s gender strategy, the discussions on good practices in peacebuilding, including the link between sustainable development and peacebuilding, the role of youth in peacebuilding, or to engage civil society organizations. The focal points will be nominated for a period of one year. In case more than one Member State expresses interest in being appointed as a focal point for the same issue or initiative, the Chair will facilitate discussions with the candidates and will bring the matter to the attention of the Organizational Committee for further action. Meetings pertaining to the various focal points should be conducted within the framework of the Organizational Committee so as to avoid duplication of work, and in order to enhance the idea of one Peacebuilding Commission.

- IV. The Chair, with the consent of Member States, should enhance the convening platform of the Commission by inviting additional partners to participate in meetings of the Commission, when relevant. Such partners may include Member States who are not members of the Organizational Committee, representatives of relevant entities of the United Nations system, international financial institutions, regional and subregional organizations, as well as civil society organizations, including youth and women organizations.

Good practices: the annual session of the Peacebuilding Commission is a good example of how the Commission has brought together various partners from the United Nations system and beyond, including representatives of civil society. In discussions pertaining to the regional dimensions of peacebuilding, the Commission also invited relevant partners on an ad hoc basis. For example, the informal meeting on good practices in transition with Timor-Leste and Sierra Leone included representatives from the Department of Political Affairs, the United Nations Development Programme and civil society organizations in Sierra Leone (using video-teleconferencing).

4. Workplan: a more predictable and longer-term workplan that would allow broader participation of Member States at the meetings of the Commission.

Actions:

- I. Commission to adopt an annual workplan based on the forward agenda contained in the Commission's annual report. The workplan is to be further developed and circulated to Member States on a quarterly basis and, on a monthly basis, listing the dates of meetings, activities and visits of the Commission in all its configurations. Additional previously unscheduled meetings to be added, if required.
- II. Workplan to take into account and reflect the relevant calendar of work of the General Assembly, the Security Council and the Economic and Social Council, particularly when it comes to activities where the advisory role of the Commission may be sought. In such cases, the Commission should organize its workplan in a way that strengthens its advisory role.
- III. Chairs of country configurations to present their calendar of work earlier in the beginning of each quarter.

- IV. Workplan to include a more regularized engagement of the Commission with regional and subregional organizations.

Good practices: the forward agenda of the annual reports of the Commission has been useful in guiding the work of the Commission. The recent visit of the Commission to the African Union (Addis Ababa, 17 to 19 October 2016), which resulted in the African Union making recommendations that the African Union and the Commission hold annual meetings and organize joint field visits. These recommendations were brought to the attention of the Commission for further consideration and action.

5. Bridging role: the resolutions on sustaining peace stress the importance of the Commission in promoting an integrated, strategic and coherent approach to sustaining peace, and, inter alia, in serving a bridging role among the principal organs and relevant entities, including financial institutions. Recognizing that development, peace and security and human rights are interlinked and mutually reinforcing, stronger synergies between the Commission and the General Assembly, the Security Council and the Economic and Social Council will ensure more coherence within the United Nations and a prominent role for peacebuilding and sustaining peace in the Organization.

Actions:

- I. The Commission to better utilize its membership to strengthen its links with the General Assembly, the Security Council and the Economic and Social Council (see also actions 2.I and 2.II) and to be a champion of sustaining peace.
- II. In connection to the Commission's advisory role to the Security Council, in addition to its engagement so far, when invited to brief the Council it should prepare its briefings by aligning its workplan to relevant Security Council meetings (see action 3.II). The activities of the Commission in preparation for these briefings may include internal thematic discussions in anticipation of issues to be discussed in the Security Council, visits to the field, including, when invited by the Council, joint visits with the Council to advance peacebuilding perspectives and the organization of meetings to engage with relevant stakeholders, including international financial institutions, United Nations entities and civil society organizations.

Through this advanced preparation, and the uniqueness of the Commission's convening power, it can have sustained interactions and enhance its efforts to provide the Security Council with substantive advice, for example in matters relating to the synergies between security and development. Similarly, regular exchanges between the Commission and other subsidiary organs of the Council should be further enhanced.

Good practices: the meetings of the Commission with the Security Council's Ad Hoc Working Group on Conflict Prevention and Resolution in Africa represented good opportunities to exchange views on issues pertaining to peacebuilding in Africa.

- III. The Commission to advocate for a coherent and predictable use of resources for peacebuilding activities, including with international financial institutions, and for innovative financial instruments.

Good practices: the five annual informal interactive dialogues between the Commission and the Security Council, together with the stock-taking exercise on the advisory function of the Commission to the Security Council, represent useful forums to ensure that the members of both the Council and the Commission can strengthen relations between the two bodies. Strengthen the informal interactions between Members of the Council and of the Commission at all levels.

6. Synergies between the Commission and the Peacebuilding Fund: while preserving the independence of the Fund, look at ways to strengthen the synergies between the Commission and the Fund, and to ensure that Member States remain informed on the ongoing projects of the Fund.

Actions:

- I. The Peacebuilding Commission is to hear presentations by countries receiving funds from the Peacebuilding Fund, in particular when peacebuilding priority plans are discussed.
- II. The Commission to invite the Chair and the members of the Advisory Group of the Peacebuilding Fund to meetings of the Commission, when relevant.
- III. Regular briefings by the Peacebuilding Support Office on the activities of the Fund at the meetings of the Commission would be useful.

Good practices: working relationship between the Commission and the Fund during the Ebola crisis; the meetings on financing for peacebuilding (Papua New Guinea and Somalia, in 2015; Kyrgyzstan, in 2016, which also included a representative from the Fund's Advisory Group) represent innovative ways to keep the Commission informed of progress countries make with support from the Fund.

7. Format of Commission meetings (open or closed): ensure that there is a balance between transparency/outreach and confidentiality of the Commission's deliberations. The Commission, in all its meetings and formats, should enhance inclusivity and ensure that participation reinforces an integrated Organizational Committee and the concept of a unified Peacebuilding Commission. Peacebuilding Support Office to continue ensuring that mechanisms of reporting back to the Organizational Committee on all Commission activities are in place.

Actions:

- I. In preparation for the meetings of the Commission, the Chair, upon consultation with countries concerned, should announce whether the meetings are to be open or closed.

8. Visibility and communication: there is a need to address the lack of awareness, both in and outside the United Nations, about the work of the Commission and on sustaining peace.

Actions:

- I. The Commission to explore ways to increase the visibility of its open meetings, in particular high-level events such as the annual session, to attract more attention from the media.
 - II. The Commission to explore ways to increase ongoing activity on the web and on social media with regard to all of its meetings and country visits.
